In any facility, there are some things that are more valuable or important than others: computer equipment and data files, money, jewels, art, weapons, controlled substances, company secrets, personal secrets and other valuable goods or documents. Some of these assets may be kept in a locked desk drawer, special room, vault or safe, secure area or perhaps simply hidden from casual view. Business owners also want to protect these items from loss due to fire, employee theft or espionage. Before proposing the installation of a security system, Valor Concepts determines what the customer's requirements and expectations are, as well as the installation company's ability to meet those needs.
